

- ① 8.21.2015 - Drawing: Story goes that Dylan Thomas drank himself to death at the White Horse Tavern, and then was taken over to St. Vincent's Hospital., 2015, color photograph, 11"x14"
- ② 8.24.2015 - drawing: for the last forty years of his life poet e. e. cummings walked through this door to his home at number 4 patchin place right around the corner from the jefferson market library, 2015, color photograph, 11"x14"
- ③ 8.25.2015 - Drawing: Poet Edna St. Vincent Millay lived at 75 1/2 Bedford Street (only 9 1/2 feet wide), now partially under scaffolding from the building next door. She was the 1923 winner of the Pulitzer Prize for poetry with "The Ballad of the Harp-Weaver: A Few Figs from Thistles: Eight Sonnets in American Poetry, 1922. A Miscellany.", 2015, color photograph, 11"x14"
- ④ 8.26.2015 - Drawing: James Baldwin, "whose passionate, intensely personal essays in the 1950's and 60's on racial discrimination in America made him an eloquent voice of the civil-rights movement," lived at 81 Horatio Street from 1958 to 1963. (Quote from NYTimes.), 2015, color photograph, 11"x14"
- ⑤ 8.27.15 - Drawing: 18 West 10th Street was home to writer Emma Lazarus. A line from her poem, "The New Colossus," is inscribed on the base of the Statue of Liberty: "Give me your tired, your poor, your huddled masses yearning to breathe free.", 2015, color photograph, 11"x14"
- ⑥ 8.28.2015 - Drawing: In 1923 poet Hart Crane lived on the second floor of 45 Grove Street, an 1871 apartment building created from a two-story 1830 mansion., 2015, color photograph, 11"x14"

- ⑦ 9.18.2015 - Drawing: Author Patricia Highsmith, who wrote "The Talented Mr. Ripley," lived in a sublet at 35 Morton Street in 1940. Most of her 22 novels were set in Greenwich Village., 2015, color photograph, 11"x14"
- ⑧ 9.22.2015 - Drawing: Lost Generation writer John Dos Passos lived at 11 Bank Street when he wrote "Manhattan Transfer" in 1925., 2015, color photograph, 11"x14"
- ⑨ 10.10.2015 - Drawing: Mark Twain lived at 14 West 10th Street from 1900-1901, and this Greek Revival building constructed in the 1850s is purported the most haunted buildings in Greenwich Village (including Clemens' ghost in a crisp white suit.), 2015, color photograph, 11"x14"
- ⑩ 10.14.2015 - Drawing: Poet Edwin Arlington Robinson lived off and on at 121 Washington Place in Greenwich Village from 1909-12, while writing "The Town Down the River.", 2015, color photograph, 11"x14"
- ⑪ 10.19.2015 - Drawing: Poet Marianne Moore lived at 14 St. Luke's Place in 1918, across from the Hudson Park Library, where she also worked for a few years. In addition to winning a Pulitzer Prize for "Collected Poems" in 1935, she is well known for wearing a cape and tricorne hat around Greenwich Village., 2015, color photograph, 11"x14"
- ⑫ 11.19.2015 - Drawing: William S. Burroughs lived at 69 Bedford Street in the West Village circa 1943., 2015, color photograph, 11"x14"
- ⑬ 12.22.2015 - Drawing: "The Life and Death of Great American Cities" author Jane Jacobs lived at 555 Hudson Street., 2015, color photograph, 11"x14"

- ⑭ 12.26.2015 - Drawing: Ezra Pound stayed at 9 Bank Street in the West Village in 1969 while working with the publisher James Laughlin., 2015, color photograph, 11"x14"
- ⑮ 12.30.2015 - Drawing: Carson McCullers lived at 321 West 11th Street in 1940 when she wrote her first novel, "The Heart Is a Lonely Hunter," at age 22., 2015, color photograph, 11"x14"
- ⑯ Emma Lazarus, 2015, ink on sketchbook paper, 5"x8"
- ⑰ Ezra Pound, 2015, ink on sketchbook paper, 5"x8"

Nick Golebiewski
Literary Greenwich Village
 February 1-29, 2016
 Hudson Park Library Gallery
 66 Leroy Street, NY, NY 10014

Opening Reception:
 Tuesday, February 2, 5-7pm
Artist Talk:
 Thursday, February 18, 6-7pm

nickgolebiewski.com

